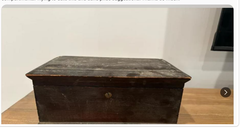
I need some help dating this antique poker/game box

Active

Found this at my local Goodwill in Kentucky. It contains some poker chips and bovine bone dice. The box has no markings, 13x5.5x7" lock without key missing handle hardware. Self lined and has removable compartments. Trying to date this and aand price suggestions. Thanks so much!



PROBABLY USED TOO HAVE RINGS IN IT, OR SOME KIND OF DANGLE HARDWARE OR A RING

The lock looks early 20th century. Could be a replacement but I would gander first quarter 20th century.

Looks late 19th century to me. The box may have been repurposed from a ladies sewing box or jewelry box as both also had locks and compartments.
The card inside the box gave the most telling information. Chas. A. Stevens was a Chicago department store. It started in 1856 as a catalog business and eventually grew to 29 locations in the Chicago metropolitan area.

The game of Auction Bridge was created circa 1904, and was popularized somewhat soon after that. If the piece is from one original set, then it would likely be no older than abt 1908, when the official rules were determined for the game.
It would be helpful if you would photograph in close detail some of the Chips and the Cards (front and Back) along with the scrap of paper to give possible context.
